"VEGETINE"

Seven Bottles given away. "VEGETINE" is not an untried or doubtful remedy. Hearing of its many wonderful cures of the worst forms of Scrofula, I was led to try it myself. Am convinced by my own experience that it is the best blood purifier ever prepared. I can recommend it to all who are afflicted with Scrofula, Salt Rheum or any blood disease, as I am confident it will do for them what it has done for me. C. O. GOODELL, 30 Hanover St., Boston.

Mr. Pitcher is a gentleman well and favorably known in this community, and for the past forty years has been occupied as a shipping merchant. He is also one of the most successful captains sailing from the port of Boston. The testimony is unique in itself, and cannot but be considered as very positive in favor of the great merits of the Diamond Rheumatic Cure.

This medicine is prepared by a careful, expert, and accomplished physician, in obedience to the desire of numberless friends of the patient, in the trade, and among the people. Every bottle is warranted to contain the full strength of the medicine in the highest degree of perfection of treatment, and is superior to any medicine ever compounded for this terrible complaint.

Its simple cures sometimes seem more than human. In the most chronic cases it is sure to cure in less than one half the time required by any other remedy. Both in small and large bottles, it is the cheapest as well as the best medicine for the purchaser to use.

This medicine is for sale at all druggists throughout the United States and Canada. If it happens that your druggist has not got it on hand, he can send for it to any of the whole sale druggists in Boston, Concord, N. H., Worcester, Providence, Portland or Bangor, and obtain it for you. Ask for

RHEUMATISM.

MUST GRIN AND BEAR IT.

HE GRINS WITH JOY.

LYNCHBURG, Miss., June 15, 1875.

DEAR ALPINE Co.—I feel it my duty as well as pleasure to certify to the following facts in my own case.

The past spring I was more than ever with Sciatic Rheumatism, suffering night after night and all night, without the least cessation, the most severe cutting pain I ever knew. By advice of my physician I tried it for thirty years, to my entire satisfaction, and in whom I still have the utmost confidence, and that "Alpine Liniment" did me no good—he could not help me. Time probably would, and in six or eight weeks it might relieve me, in the meantime I must grin and bear it." But I was not requested to do so, and in my desperation I caught at the first article, which under the name of Quack or Patent Medicine, or any other epithet, prominent either it happened that his was the obtained at No. 36 Hanover st., Boston, the state agents accompanying directions seemed reasonable and I determined to give it a fair trial. I did so, at the same time being without faith in its efficacy. I followed the directions, and the remedy were, then and there, the third bottle I was sensible that it was acting powerfully and favorably, and before using the fourth bottle, my pain had passed away, and I now have no common sense (which I do) that I no longer have to bear them.

I am respectfully,

WM. H. PITCHER.

We endorse the above testimony as genuine.

C. C. GOODELL, 30 Hanover St., Boston.

TOP BUGGY FOR SALE.

One of the best Top Buggies in the city, nearly new, will be sold at a bargain, or exchanged for a good Horse.

G. S. BEAN,

Bangor, Aug. 1875 3w34

To the Hon. Justices of the Supreme Judicial Court, next to be holden at Bangor, in and for the County of Penobscot, on the second Tuesday of October next.

Mercy Merrill represents Ellen Tanney, of Orrington, in the County of Penobscot, that on the day of September, A. D. 1873, she was married to James A. Tanney, that since said marriage said complainant has lived in this State, and conducted herself towards the said James A. Tanney as a true faithful and chaste wife. By order, &c.

A. LUNNEY, wholly regardless of his marriage vows, has ever since his said marriage, conducted himself towards the said libellant in a wanton, shameless and cruel manner, viz: He has committed the crime of adultery with women whose names are unknown to the libellant, and has on divers occasions had illicit connection and criminal diseases which he communicated to the libellant, and from which she suffered for a long time, and has very often been in the habit of indecently using the third Lord's Day, and frequently drunk, that one year ago he left the libellant and since that time has furnished her with no aid and support.

Wherefore, the said Ellen Tanney prays right and justice, and that the said Court will grant her a decree from the bonds of matrimony with the said James A., if it seems it reasonable and proper, considering the domestic harmony and conditions of the parties and morality of society.

And your libellant alleges further that the said James A. Tanney has left this State, and she has exercised great diligence to learn where he now is, but his residence is not known to said libellant, and cannot be ascertained by reasonable diligence.

ELLEN TUNNEY.

Bangor, Aug. 21, 1875.

PENOBSCOT, ss. Aug. 21, 1875.

D. 1875, by publishing an attested copy of said libel, and this order thereon, three weeks successively in the Daily Whig and Courier, a newspaper printed in Bangor in our County of Penobscot, the last publication to be thirty days at least prior to said Second Tuesday of October next, that he may there and then in our said Court appear and show cause, if any he has, why the prayer of said libellant should not be granted.

DRUNKENNESS AMONG THE FRENCH LABORING CLASSES.

[From the Saturday Review.]

The report on the material and economical condition of the laboring classes which has recently been presented to the French Assembly goes far to destroy the belief in the superiority, as regards sobriety and thriftiness, of the French over the English poor. It has mentioned the other day that, while the sanitary condition of the English factories has greatly improved of late years, there has been no corresponding improvement in the physical strength of those who work in them, and a similar discouraging statement is made by the Committee of the Assembly. At the beginning of the century, it is said, employers and public capital, and consequently no money to spend on bricks and mortar. A factory was too often little more than a covered shed. The increase of wealth has facilitated and necessitated the construction of new and larger buildings, and the workman is no longer sensibly the worse either in health or longevity by reason of the labor which he has to undergo. Yet French, equally with English, observers speak of the premature decay which they observe in manufacturing districts. Drunkenness is frankly due to causes that have no connection with the necessary conditions of the occupations pursued there.

The French committee are disposed to trace this decay to premature excess in alcoholic liquors. The merry workman who refreshes himself after his day's labor with a glass of beer, and water, varied on holidays by a little light wine, is apparently unknown to these. If he ever existed he has disappeared before the growing tendency to over indulgence in unwholesome stimulants. We believe that the spirits ordinarily sold in a French cabaret are impercentibly more poisonous than those which make the most debased of an English publican, and in that case the effects which the committee mourn over cannot be said to outrun the cause. It would be interesting to know to what this increase of drunkenness in France is to be attributed. The explanation often given of the same fact in this country can scarcely hold good in France. We have been accustomed to preach that sobriety and excess in reasonable opportunities of amusement go hand in hand, and to point to the French workingman as a striking example of this. It now turns out that in a country which has been supposed to be especially rich in opportunities of amusement, the taste for drinking is also increasing. The French poor, especially South, breathe a lighter and purer air, or is supposed to live, a more enjoyable life than the English; but he is not free from the drinking habits which do more than anything else to degrade the English workman.

PRUSSIAN MILITARY TRAINING.

The Paris correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph writes: "A very interesting letter from Metz in a French military paper gives details of the kind of drill Prussian troops are subjected to. If the account be correct, actual campaigning must appear like a holiday to them in comparison with their peace training.

Military marches take place daily, no matter what the state of temperature may be. The men are invariably in heavy marching order. They start at 4 A. M., after having taken coffee, and return to quarters at 10 or 11 or 12. The forces are divided into two corps—one of them, in forage caps, are supposed to represent the enemy. The cavalry is specially trained in reconnoitering duties, and a couple of troops invariably accompany the infantry. The troops are never allowed to enter a village; each man takes some bread and meat with him, and when the halt is called, if near any town or hamlet, each squad of twenty men detaches two, who are sent to purchase wine or bread. The men who have no money are regularly allowed to have a pull at the flask of their comrades better off than themselves. This is an understood thing. The officers mostly do without eating, the few who require refreshment being content with a sandwich. Each halt lasts three-quarters of a hour. At the signal given by the bugle the sentries and outposts, which are stationed all round to a distance of eight hundred metres, instantly fall in. The return homewards is widely different from the marching out. There is no more maneuvring, the body of the men march in two lines right and left of the road with a group of singers in the middle. Patriotic songs are the rule; whence the words 'home' and 'Vaterland' are of frequent occurrence. The Bavarians are partial to warlike ditties in which the 'Erb-Feind' seems severely handled. Every since last Thursday all the non-commissioned officers are engaged in making fascines and throwing up earthworks. They start at 6 P. M., and remain out all night. On dark nights a powerful lamp, like that of a lighthouse, is used.

This seems hard work. In South Germany the training seems equally practical and severe. M. Victor Tissot's book Voyage au Pays des Milliards, shows how recruits are trained at Ulm. They are specially practised in marksmanship and gymnastics. For two hours every day they are kept firing at targets with ball cartridge, remembering to the distant outline of Zouaves and Turcos. The instructors in musketry are all Prussian, and come from the school of musketry at Spandau. Moreover, they are frequently practised in the operations of real warfare. Quite recently the railway station at Ulm was "captured by surprise" by a body of Bavarian recruits, the employees were all made prisoners, while the special "railway battalion" took possession of the railway stock, and organized railway stoppers." At other times M. Tissot assures us that the men are trained in 'requisitioning' villages, which seems carrying professional zeal very far indeed."

A War Reminiscence. I stood, not in Venice on the Bridge of Sighs, but upon the upper verandah in front of the old Pavilion Hotel, in the city of Houston. The hour was noon. And I leaned forward over the balustrade, and peered through the trees at the group below, composed of soldiers off duty and civilians who wore "exempt" after their names. It was in the midst of the war. The gallant Magruder was quartered in the town, and everything wore a martial aspect. Seated alone upon an armed penitentiary or gate-bottomed chair, tilted back against one of the trees, was a stalwart, elderly man, a stranger, simply attired, evidently out of health, and leaning with apparent interest to the arguments and contradictions of those around. The central figure was a Confederate officer, bedizened with lace and buttons, sash and sword. He was discussing the war, disunion, the Confederacy. "Gentlemen," he exclaimed, "how I should like to meet that ——— traitor, that ——— Unionist, who would not sell his State for a mess of pottage—Sam Houston, the arch-traitor! I'd run this sword [drawing the weapon from its scabbard] through his traitorous body." The split-bottomed chair came down squarely on its four feet, and I felt my hair raise in ratio with the towering form that unfolded itself, presenting, even in fleshiness, as fine a specimen of manhood as I ever beheld. Stepping eagerly forward, with his eye shadowing the belched pygmy he thundered

"I can accommodate you, sir. Here is the heart"—striking his bosom with his hand—"of Sam Houston, at your service, and he who says it is a coward or a traitor's heart lies in his teeth—lies, sir, like a lousy dog that he is!"

The presence of the man was so great that I do not believe one of the eye-witnesses could tell upon oath what ever became of the pigmy. When they recovered their senses he was gone,—that was all we knew and that was enough.

Two sons of Mr. Hill of Cape Elizabeth were thrown from a carriage in Portland, Thursday morning, and narrowly escaped instant death. A train backing up Central street, frightened the horse, and as the carriage was overturned, one of them was thrown just in front of the driving wheel of the locomotive, but was dragged out but little injured. The other boy escaped uninjured.

Edwin, son of James Tombird of West Baldwin, about fifteen years of age, was severely wounded by the accidental discharge of his gun, Wednesday.

The Telegraph mentions that several salmon have been recently seen at the fishway of the cotton-mill dam at Brunswick. It thinks that the lower fishway is imperfectly constructed, and certainly will not answer the purpose, at a low stage of water, if at all.

Franklin.

The Chronicle says that a grand foot will occur over the Franklin Trotting Park in Farmington, to continue two days, commencing Wednesday 15th inst. $320 in purses are offered.

Mrs. Abigail Campbell, an aged lady of Temple, fell down the cellar stairs, having mistaken the door for another, and had both legs badly broken. Her condition is very dangerous.

The American says that some wretch last week cut and mutilated in the most shocking manner, two cows belonging to Alexander F. Weaver of Ellsworth. This barbarous treatment of dumb animals cannot be too severely reprobated.

The Journal says that Hon. Wm. C. Parks of the Sandwich Islands is visiting friends in Augusta. He has for many years been Marshal and Sheriff of the whole group of the Sandwich Islands. Mr. Parks married the daughter of the late Hon. Luther Severance of Augusta.

John Ayer, Esq., of Waterville President of the Somerset Railroad, had a slight paralytic shock last week.

Levi Day of Porter committed suicide Wednesday afternoon by shooting himself. From appearances he loaded a gun, tied a string to the trigger and round the bedpost, lying down on the bed with the muzzle of the gun pointed to the right breast, and pulled the gun towards him with his right hand. The charge entered the right breast, passed through the heart and came out through the left shoulder blade, killing him instantly. He was nearly sixty years old, and had been unable to work for a year or more. He came there from Aroostook county about two weeks ago.

A four years old son of D. D. Ridlon of Porter, was recently run over by an ox cart loader, with thirty-two bushels of threshed oats. The little lad attempted to climb up on the cart while his father was opening a gate, and was upon the wheel when the oxen started; he was thrown forward and the wheel passed over the lower part of his body, inflicting such severe injuries that he recovery is doubtful.

The Observer says that Mr. Ira Whitney, a resident of Foxcroft for many years, died on Tuesday morning, of Bright's disease of the kidneys. His age was 66 years.

Sunday, Aug. 29, was said to have been the hottest day of the season, in Dover, when the mercury stood in the vicinity of 100° in the shade. There has been no rain for about a fortnight, and the river and streams are rapidly drying up, leaving the shore to send up malaria, the fruit of which is and will continue to be, a vast amount of sickness throughout the locality.

The Belfast Journal says that it is believed that the incendiary who fired Pitcher & Goldsmith's store-house, and the real Belfast fire bug has been found. On Saturday last a female named Alice V. Pendleton went to Sheriff Norton, confessed that herself and a certain man were the incendiaries, and voluntarily gave herself into his keeping. She was lodged in jail and a warrant issued. On her information Jacey Flagg was arrested as the other incendiary. The human fire bug was captured on Wednesday, and committed on the warrant, and committed to the care of the Sheriff, to appear as a witness at the October court.

Charley Reynolds of Brooks, 14 years of age, son of Samuel Reynolds, met with a severe accident on Saturday. He was sent into the pasture to catch two horses, and had done so, riding one and leading the other. The one which he was leading became frightened and jumping suddenly pulled the boy off, breaking his arm. Both bones of the forearm were badly shattered.

Democratic papers justifying or generously excusing the conduct of the Democratic State organ in the matter of the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad bonds, will confer a favor upon the public by calling its attention to the fact that while the Democratic State organ was denouncing the Republican State officers for issuing bonds to the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad, it was itself urging the Democratic State officers to issue bonds to the same railroad. Will they please explain this inconsistency?

Mr. Blaine has had no opportunity to reply to Attorney General Pillsbury's statement, but it is evident that his course towards the Johnson estate was in the highest degree honorable and such as could not ordinarily expected in business transactions.

We cannot believe you would intentionally injure Mr. Blaine personally. I am sure you will be glad of publishing the explanatory note and I particularly request that any other paper that may have made the same charges will also be kind enough to give this note a place in its columns.

Yours Respectfully,

P. B. Blaine

We are informed a few days since through the usual channel for Southern news, that the insurrection of negroes had been planned in several counties of Georgia, and that the whites had promptly put down the "conspiracy" by a wholesale arrest and imprisonment of colored men. We are now receiving the facts in the case, which put quite another face on the affair and show how little regard is paid for the rights of colored men in the staunch Democratic State of Georgia.

Mr. Charles Nordhoff, who has been spending many months in investigating the condition of the South writes that the only movement contemplated by the negroes, was a meeting in Burke county to discuss certain state laws which discriminate against them and the throwing of any of them into jail was uncalled for. Mr. Nordhoff says that while the Georgia negroes are disfranchised for non-payment of poll-taxes and that all colored men are excluded from juries in many parts of the State, the rights of colored men are fully respected, and of one of them happens to offend the whites, he is generally tried and punished. Mr. Nordhoff says the negro is generally a faithful laborer.

It appears that the editor of the Bangor Commercial was present at the Republican flag raising in that city, at West Market square the other evening. In his report of the proceedings, about all that he did report was that "Col. Stevens, a gentleman from Maine, was the next speaker on the stand." Col. Stevens is not one to sit down quietly under such a slight as that, and we presume the editor of the Commercial will hear from him in the matter.

Of the disbursements of the State Treasurer for the year 1873 amounting to $1,362,483, the sum of $660,394 was paid out on account of liabilities of various sorts growing out of the late war. Were it not for this war debt of over five millions, the State pensions and other liabilities of the same nature, the State tax would not be half the sum now required of the taxpayers of Maine. Will therefore make the statement that more than three-fifths of the burden of municipal and State taxation now imposed upon the people of Maine is due to liabilities growing out of the Democratic rebellion of 1861-5, and we challenge successful contradiction. In view of this self-evident fact, one would think that the Democratic press would keep quiet about the burden of taxation; but those party journals have not even the good taste or candor of the highwayman who admits his crime and attempts to give a virtuous explanation therefor.—Press.

[From the Kennebec Journal.]

A SPECIMEN LIE OF PILLSBURY

From one the Public can Judge of.

In 1873, just towards the close of the campaign, Pillsbury published a statement that Mr. Blaine had not dealt in good faith with the estate of A. W. Johnson at Belfast, in the matter of some Little Rock and Fort Smith bonds. As soon as this groundless and malicious falsehood—of Pillsbury's own invention—fell under the observation of Mr. C. B. Hazeltine, one of the executors of the Johnson estate, he addressed the subjoined letter to Pillsbury. But Pillsbury, like the sneaking slanderer that he is, not only declined to publish the letter but gave a false statement of its contents. Mr. Hazeltine had taken the precaution to send us a copy and it was published in our issue of Sept. 25, 1872.

This very week Pillsbury in a long and trashy letter addressed to Mr. Blaine repeats the statement about the Johnson estate knowing it to be false. And the Portland Argus reproduces Pillsbury's falsehood the editor of that paper knowing it to be a falsehood. The best and only answer that can be given to these graceless slanderers is to reproduce Mr. Hazeltine's letter. Our readers are of course aware that Mr. Hazeltine is now and always has been a Democrat. But unlike Pillsbury he is a respectable and high-toned gentleman scorning to stoop to slander and falsehood for party ends.

Here is Mr. Hazeltine's letter and remember it was originally addressed to the Maine Standard, and Pillsbury declined to publish it. Surely Colonel Smith will correct us in declaring that Pillsbury's name is identified with all that is disreputable and despicable in Maine politics.

BELFAST, Sept 19 1872

To the Editor of the Maine Standard.

Your paper contained an article a short time since reflecting on Speaker Blaine for a alleged want of good faith in dealing with the estate of the late A. W. Johnson of this city, in the matter of certain bonds of the Little Rock and Fort Smith Railroad Company. I did not see the article at the time of its issue, or I would more promptly have written it for correction.

Allow me now, as one of the executors of Mr. Johnson's estate, to say that your information is entirely erroneous.

I desire further to say, that Mr. Blaine's conduct in the whole matter was that of a gentleman, and a man of honor.

The business matter between Mr. Johnson's estate and Mr. Blaine was altogether pro and con, and I can see no reason for dragging it before the public. But should it remain silent under the circumstances, I would seem to give consent to the truth of the charges. Opposed as I am to Mr. Blaine politically, I feel conscientious to bear my testimony to his just and honorable conduct in all business transactions with which I have had any connection, or of which I have had any knowledge.

Yours Respectfully,

C B Hazeltine

FAILURE OF THE BOSTON AND CHARLESTON STEAMSHIP COMPANY. The steamers Flag and Mercedita which formerly ran between Boston and Charleston, were withdrawn from the line some months ago, owing to the want of remunerative business The company was organized in 1872 with a capital of $100,000, and has been running two steamers, at a yearly expense of 475,000 each The yearly income, it is stated, was wholly disproportionate to the outlay, and the entire capital has been sunk by losses in business, with an additional liability of $125,000 for advances made by certain creditors The two steamers cost $160,000, and are the only assets of the company The principal creditors are the Quintard Iron Works, $30,000; the Charleston Steamship Company, $60,000; the agents of the line at Charleston, $20,000, $20 000, and an accumulated deficiency in the running expenses of about $25,000. The officers hope by good management to pay fifty cents on the dollar to creditors.

Bayard Taylor's protest against the imposition and insults to which free negroes are subjected on railroad cars, at the hands of the boys who sell cheap literature, cheap confectionary and vegetable ivory, will call forth many hearty thanks from thousands of sufferers. The importunance of these boys, when they do not effect sales, is sometimes so grossly insolent that one regrets the proprietors is not more quick, but at times they are very insulting, and especially to ladies. The quality of their merchandize is more objectionable than their mode, for we saw objects in their possession sometimes sold for important uses of the toilet which were positively filthy, and a wife with her husband in the interior has deteriorated into a positive nuisance.

The Chinese Regency has decided to send another Embassy to Western nations, in charge this time of Mr Hart, an Irishman, who has been some years in the Imperial service as Collector of Customs It has likewise resolved to be represented abroad by diplomatic agents All this looks progressive, and may tend to remove the distrust evinced in Europe and especially in Great Britain, where the policy of the Regency is regarded as both reactionary and hostile.

THE PARADISE OF TEARS.

[From the German of Nicholas Muller, by W. C. Bryant.]

By the River of Tears, with branches low,
And bitter leaves, the weeping willows grow.
The branches stream like dishevelled hair
Of women in the sadness of despair.

On rolls the stream with a perpetual sigh.
The rocks moan shrilly as it passes by.
Hyssop and wormwood border all the strand,
And not a flower adorns the dreary land.

Then comes a child, whose face is like the sun,
And dips the gloomy waters as they run,
And where all the regions are and realms,
The ground is bright with blossoms mingled

Where fall the tears of love the rose appears,
And where the ground is bright with friendship's
Forget-me-nots and violets, heavenly blue,
Spring glittering with their hearts of dropl

The souls of mourners, all whose tears are dried,
Like swans, come gently sloating down the tide,
Walk up the garden roads by which it flows,
And in that Paradise of Tears repose

There every heart regains a kindred heart
There is a long embrace that comes not part,
No different moods, no cold estrangement there
But all the spirits happy exchange

BEE FOR GRAIN AND FOR SOILING.

Some years ago, winter rye was grown almost wholly for its grain, and the product in that way was so small that it gradually became rather unpopular among farmers who could get good prices for hay and other spring crops. Within a few years past the price of straw has increased so much that it may be raised at a good profit even if the grain were only worth the cost of threshing for the straw has often been worth more by the ton than the best English hay. It is not only used for bedding for horses in most of the city stables, but is also in good demand for covering the floor of horse cars in winter. It also brings a good price peddled in the cities and many villages for under beds among the poor and even the middle classes. Many persons who used even wheat for this purpose in the days when people fed in manger as well as American so that rye for its grain and straw has come to be one of the most profitable crops to many farmers a little distance from the cities.

Winter rye is also coming to be highly valued as a soiling crop by farmers who make a specialty of producing milk or fattening cattle. Keep it storage in the best condition for feeding stock but it is most profitable generally to cut it for soiling when in full bloom. In the field in the spring it will be ready to feed a week or two before timothy is ready for the scythe. Under such circumstances it is much better and more palatable to stock than dry straw or timothy hay. Cattle do not like the straw of rye after it has become hard and woody, but they will eat the young succulent stalks with avidity. Cut when in full bloom, it is not only the earliest feed for a young stalk but it is one of the richest feeds in nitrogenous matter. It will produce more milk and butter per week than will timothy hay. Rye does well on winter grass pastures and it may also be sowed in the fall after the grass is mown for hay. Rye does not exhaust the soil of its fertility as much as timothy and clover. Indeed the latter is said to be much benefited by a crop of rye sowed with it. Rye is also a good crop to plow under for manure. Sown broadcast in the fall after the corn is cut it will make a rank growth in the spring, which when plowed under will add much to the fertility of the soil. Under such circumstances it is much better than buckwheat for plowing under for manure. Rye will grow well on thin soils and will produce a good crop of grain where wheat will not grow. Rye is also a good crop to sow with grass seed in the fall. It will afford protection to the young grass from the winter's cold and from the spring frosts. It will also afford a good crop of rye straw and a good pasture for sheep in the fall before the grass starts in the spring. Rye is also a good crop to sow with grass seed in the fall. SAVE MANURIAL ACCUMULATIONS

Now at many farmers allow much of the manure material to be wasted. On many farms during the busy summer season the droppings of the pig sty and stables and the various refuse matters accumulating in the rear of one's premises are suffered to be exposed to the sun, wind and rain, both wasting their most valuable properties and filling the air with a noisome stench. We have often urged the gathering up and preservation of all fertilizing materials, such as bones, chips, weeds, old, plaster and lime kitchen slops, &c., and we now repeat the suggestion. Let all these things speedily find their way to the compost heap. If on the north side of the barn it will be better off than on the south, if covered, it will be betteroff still. Such a covering can be made without much trouble or expense. Set in the ground six, eight or more posts, according to the expected size of your heap, and throw over them a shed roof of boards or slabs, sloping to the south. Board up the shanty on three sides, leaving the north open. Now, see to it that a generous pile of muck, or its equivalent, is deposited just outside of this shed, and you will be ready for operations. Wheel in manure from all quarters as fast as it accumulates, and lay it in rows or heaps the whole length of the shed, spreading it deep firmly and covering it with successive layers of muck! In this way the manure will be preserved from the action of the elements, and the volatile gases which make the compost heap so rapidly evo tee, will be absorbed and saved. If any one thinks the work pay, let him try it and see. Let every tiller of the soil take good care of the manure heap, during the summer.—N. Y. Herald.
